Trained in medicine and psychiatry at the University of Maryland Medical Systems in Baltimore (MD), she is board-certified in psychiatry and neurology, and maintains a private practice in psychotherapy, psychopharmacology, and forensic psychiatry. Dr. Thomas is a consulting psychiatrist for the National Football League. She maintains hospital privileges at Aventura Hospital (Aventura, FL), Palmetto General Hospital (Hialeah, FL), and Broward Health North, (Pompano Beach, FL).

Dr. Thomas is also a Lieutenant Colonel in the U.S. Army Reserves and a veteran of Operations Iraqi and Enduring Freedom who has completed three tours of duty — to Iraq, Afghanistan and Kuwait — to provide mental health care for soldiers needing stress reduction and therapy, family connectedness and spiritual well-being.

In her private practice, Dr. Thomas provides individual, couple, and group therapy to address several issues, including: performance problems experienced by serious amateur and professional athletes, addiction, sexual dysfunction, mood and anxiety disorders.

Dr. Thomas founded the nonprofit organization, The DRT Brain Love Foundation in 2018, with a mission of providing a culturally sensitive and holistic approach to mental and behavioral health for disadvantaged individuals by encompassing awareness, education, prevention, and treatment modalities to improve the quality of life.

Dr. Thomas also works as a consultant for companies and government agencies, leading group discussions that help organizations reboot their work climates. Having served as clinical director and chief psychiatrist for the U.S. Department of Justice Federal Bureau of Prisons, she is adept at providing instruction to federal employees and in law enforcement settings.

No stranger to media coverage, Dr. Thomas has lent her expert opinion to a wide array of topics to news organizations all over the country, reporting on everything from “bad bosses” and synthetic drugs to military issues and ‘Brain Love Foods’.

Dr. Thomas has also appeared as a guest expert several times during Miami’s HOT 105’s, The Rick Party Show. She continues to lend her expertise to other radio shows including on-line radio.

Dr. Thomas received her undergraduate degree from the Notre Dame of Maryland University. She received her medical degree from Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine in 2003 and completed her residency training at the University of Maryland and Sheppard Enoch Pratt Psychiatry Program four years later. During her residency, she also attained her master’s degree in public health.

Dr. Thomas has loved soldiers all her life. She was born in Fort Riley, Kan., and raised in a military family. Today, she lives in Florida with her son who is attending FIU. In her spare time, she enjoys watching college and professional football, playing golf, fine dining and traveling.
